DETAILED COURSE CONTENT

We intend to provide students with the interpretative and methodological tools useful for the analysis of the most recent transformations of urban systems in their economic, political, symbolic-cultural and physical-environmental dimensions. Through the main theoretical approaches to the study of the urban phenomenon and the focusing of the characters that takes the evolution of the urban phenomenon in the history of the development of societies, the course will aim to stimulate the students' reflection and ability to criticize theories and above all on the practices of modern urban transformations, trying to encourage the sensitivity necessary to identify the problems that characterize today's societies and to hypothesize useful projects to face them.
